U.S. Will Draft College Students In Science Studies-- Webb Believes

By John Hutcheson

"That the government will draft all persons who enter colleges and universities into studies that will benefit the needs of the country, if the modern youth does not wake up to the fact that a knowledge of science and mathematics is necessary in order to live in this mechanical age," is the opinion of Dr. W. S. Webb, head of the department of physics.

Dr. Webb returned to the University from Washington last week.

While in Washington, Dr. Webb made a national survey of the future needs of scientific personnel, and an inventory of scientific ability in the United States.

After studying scientific problems in this country, Dr. Webb has decided that this war will never be won by the Allied nations until the modern youth discovers that science and mathematics are more important than "having a big time."

The first World War was fought mostly by chemists, but because of airplanes, detectors, and other modern equipment, the present war will have to be fought by physicists if the Allied nations are to win.

Dr. Webb found the national scientific situation pathetic. There are approximately 3,000 physicists in the United States and at least 5,300 are needed to train the wanted personnel that the country must have to operate the complicated equipment now used by all nations.

The universities in this country

Dr. W. S. Webb

... War will not be won until youth wakes up!

should train at least 2000 students a year in science, and even this would not be enough to fill the vacancies. With this large number it would take 10 years to supply the country with the needed personnel, Dr. Webb said.

Dr. Webb suggests that all students interested in saving democracy should prepare themselves in the study of science and mathematics which will be useful to them in peacetime as well as wartime.

RESERVE TO ADD 86,000 FROSH

Dr. Henry Harrington Hill, Dean of the University, announced this week, that the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps planned to enroll 86,000 freshmen in the nation's Universities starting this fall. From this number, the Army expects to secure 35,000 college trained officers at the end of their senior year.

Dr. Hill warned that before joining the Enlisted Reserve, students should carefully consider their scholastic record and whether they possess the qualities essential to becoming officers. He believed that no man should enroll in the section unless he had at least a standing of 1. This he regarded as an absolute minimum grade.

Dr. Hill emphasized that students in the Reserve who failed to maintain their scholastic standing or who left school would be immediately called up to active Army duty.

Lower division students will be given a general aptitude test at the end of their sophomore year. Failure to pass this test would make them eligible for immediate call to Army service.

Dean Hill recently returned from a meeting of the joint Army-Navy Board for the Fifth Corps Area, at Columbus, Ohio.

Colonel B. E. Brewer, ROTC commandant at the University and a member of the Board, also attended the conference.

U. K. EMPLOYEES BUY WAR BONDS

University employees are jointly subscribing approximately $4,000 a month to the nation's war effort through a payroll deduction plan inaugurated three months ago.

All departments of the University are co-operating and seventy per cent of the employees have authorized the business office to deduct a portion of their monthly salary for war bonds.

Each employee co-operating signs a record card stating how much money he wants deducted. The business office takes out the allotment and deposits it to the account of the individual concerned. When enough money accumulates to purchase a bond of the denomination specified, the bond is bought and delivered to the employee and further deductions are credited toward the purchase of the next bond.

Frank D. Peterson, comptroller of the University, has started a campaign to encourage more employees to sign up for the payroll deduction plan and to ask for additional allotments from those who are now taking part in the war bond plan.

William Howe Warren, Lebanon; and Louis H. Hatchett, Elkmont, Alabama.

Capurso Directs Tonight's Concert

Several Lexington soloists have been selected to appear on this first program which is entitled, "Music of the United Nations."

The concert has been arranged so as to present the music of Russia, England and the United States.

Nelson Leaves For Mammoth Cave

Vincent E. Nelson, assistant professor of geology at the University, will go to Mammoth Cave National Park at the end of the first term of the summer quarter to take a post as ranger-naturalist.

Music Room Open To Students

The Carnegie music room, in the Student Union building, is open to students Monday through Friday from 12:00 to 4:00 o'clock.

U.K. Administrator Accepts $ 15,000 Post At Pittsburgh

By "Sonny" White

Dean Henry H. Hill
leaves University for higher paid position.

The University administration lost one of its leading officials, Wednesday, when Dr. Henry H. Hill, Dean of the University, announced his acceptance of an offer as superintendent of public schools in Pittsburgh, Penn., at $15,000 a year.

In announcing his resignation, Dr. Hill stated that he had enjoyed his year as Dean of the University and was leaving with regret. Only a splendid opportunity such as the Pittsburgh offer would have caused him to resign, he said. He believed that the University was doing a splendid job in meeting the war emergency and that the Institution faced a bright future.

University President Herman Lee Donovan offered his congratulations to Dr. Hill and stated that "Pittsburgh's gain is the University of Kentucky's loss." He praised Dr. Hill as being one of the ablest men the University ever had.

President Donovan asserted however, that Dr. Hill's acceptance of the Pittsburgh offer would be just another example of the adverse effect exercised on the University by the present $5,000 a year salary limit.

A Kentucky Court of Appeals decision established the limit on University professors' salaries earlier this year.

"With top men being attracted to other jobs by better wages and others on our faculty entering the armed services, the University is having a difficult time holding its staff together," Dr. Donovan remarked.

While he will remain at the University for part of the second term of the summer quarter, Dr. Hill expects to assume his duties as superintendent of the Pittsburgh public schools by September 1.

Dean Hill was chosen from among 23 candidates for the position. He was invited to Pittsburgh in June for a personal interview with members of the education board. His term as superintendent will run until December 31, 1945.

From 1930 to 1940, Dr. Hill was superintendent of the Lexington schools.

BRAZIL VISITOR LIKES COLLEGE

By John Hutcheson

Touring the country to compare the educational standards of Brazil and America, Dr. Hernane Travares de Sa, representative from the Brazil minister of education, has found this country much more advanced than his own.

Dr. Travares, who recently spent a few days at the University, said that only the wealthy group in Brazil go to college.

"There are only eleven universities, and these are located in the large cities," said Dr. Travares. "A new university is being built near Rio which is like the modern American schools, and this one is to have a campus."

The schools in this Latin American country do not have campuses, and the major sports are swimming and rowing.

In Brazil, the students seldom ask the professors questions while class is in session, and Travares said that he liked the American system better, where students and instructors are less formal.

'Keep 'Em Writing And We'll Keep 'Em Flying', Army Says

By Lois Ann Markwardt

"Keep 'em writing and we'll keep 'em flying" was the response of most men in the armed forces in the recent drive to boost military morale sponsored by the Kentucky Correspondence Klub, which is headed by Miss Julian Ann Waters.

Letters from various camps specified what sort of correspondents the men preferred and asked that the letters they are to receive be "lengthy and newsy."

Twenty co-eds on the campus are at this time writing to acquaintances made through the "KKK" and find it very interesting to receive letters from those in the service.

One soldier, stationed at Jacksonville, Florida, said of the drive to boost morale, "The men here are all for the idea, and we appreciate civilian interest in us."

Since the campaign was started two weeks ago, over a hundred letters from soldiers have been received by Miss Waters, who says the difficulty now is trying to find a sufficient number of co-eds wishing to correspond.

"It is the duty of American women to aid the war effort in any manner that they can and that is the aim of the "KKK" campaign," said Miss

Julia Ann Waters

... leader of "KKK"

Waters.

Girls Pay—And Play

This week, 125 girls at the University are paying twenty-five cents each to pay for an orchestra for the soldier's dance, Saturday night. In addition to paying for the orchestra, the girls will attend the dance to see that the boys from Fort Knox enjoy themselves. Nice going—girls! Keep it up!

"PLEASE"—Pleases

Congratulations to Buildings and Grounds for their courteous and effective "PLEASE" signs which are distributed around the campus. The student body has responded much better to this polite request than it did to the crude brush piles which littered the campus in the fall and winter. There may even come a day when "cow paths" across the University campus will disappear altogether.

Have You Been Swipin' Books?

University students who have been taking books from the Reserve Room of the library before 9:30 p. m. may be surprised to learn that such an offense is punishable by dismissal from the University. This thoughtless act is practiced by only a small part of the student body and usually happens during the rush of examinations. It is at this time, however, when certain books may be invaluable to an entire class and through some student's selfishness, an entire group suffers. Obviously, this would be a bad habit which University students might well discontinue.

Co-eds Forget

One of the biggest problems of the University coed entertaining a Fort Knox soldier is to realize that it is the soldier who is being entertained and not herself. Too many girls forget that the boys from camp are in the army of a country at war. Too many of them forget that these boys may have saved spare change for weeks in order to make the trip to Lexington. Too many of them forget that these boys may not have danced with a girl in months. Let's stop forgetting and begin remembering that we all have a part which we can play in this war and it is up to us to play it well.

Talkie Talk

By "Marky"

"Mrs. Miniver", now playing at the Kentucky theater, is living up to Hollywood expectations by breaking boxoffice records all over the country. This human story of an English family caught in the gripping episodes of war, touches a sympathetic note in the heart of those who see it.

Greer Garson, enacting the title role, and Walter Pidgeon, as Mr. Miniver, excel in the portrayal of high courage, devotion and abiding faith. This pair brought together again by popular demand surpass their outstanding roles in "Blossoms in the Dust."

The supporting cast, which includes Dame May Whitty, Teresa Wright, Richard Ney, Reginald Owen and Henry Wilcoxon aid in emphasizing the tremendous impact of the war on the common people of England, with all its resultant drama, fortitude, and heroism. "Mrs. Miniver" presents a different kind of war story, stressing the theme that this is the people's war rather than just a soldier's conflict.

Laughter is the keynote of Kay Kyser's latest picture, "My Favorite Spy", which opens Sunday at the Ben Ali theater to offer plenty of excitement and several catchy new songs in addition to its hilarity.

In the film, Kyser is just getting married when... he's drafted! After some comic mishaps, he lands in the intelligence service, is assigned to help in exposing an enemy spy ring, and ordered to keep his mouth shut; he can't however, when an attractive blonde operative is told to work with him. When the new Mrs. Kyser finds it out, things begin to happen to Kyser's domestic life.

Ellen Drew as the bride, Jane Wyman as the blonde and Robert Armstrong as the spy-ring leader, have principal supporting roles and handle them brilliantly. Ish Kabibble, Sully Mason and Harry Bab-bitt of Kyser's band with Trudy Irwin and Dorothy Dunn, vocalists, and the band itself, likewise are excellent.

LIFE'S PARADE

•By Jay Wilson

The University is going to get its field house! And it'll contain a large indoor football field... with stands on all sides... and men's dormitories at one end... and a swimming pool at the other... with a large auditorium and gymnasium on the ground floor.

I know. I had a nightmare last night.

Maybe it was that talk with President Donovan... or a letter by a Lexington woman to the Courier-Journal concerning "that play house"... or a sweltering night at Guignol—all I know is I had the most horrible dream since the architect forgot to put a big enough ice box in the Union building.

It was fantastic—this nocturnal vision... with football boys practicing, rain or shine, every day of the week... and Coach Kirwan's astounded ears ringing with the alumni's cries of "over-trained."

Dean Jones, with an entire new set of men's rooms, was having twice as much trouble filling the dorms... and ended up requiring freshmen to stay in them at least one year.

Frank Fowler was frantically walking up and down the aisle of his new auditorium... recklessly pulling at his mustache... trying to figure out a way to fill 4,000 seats... when he sometimes has vacancies in his present 200.

Coach Adolph Rupp seemed to be the only happy man there. He had a basket and ball for every one of his players... and for once his freshmen could practice without waiting until the varsity were through.

The campus seemed over-run with crowds who were forever attending either one tournament or another. It was only occasionally that I saw anyone I knew...

The crowds seemed to get larger every time I turned a corner and at last I noticed they were all following me... getting faster when I walked faster... slowing down if I slowed down.

I turned the corner at the Administration building and broke into a run... wildly leaving them all behind... but when I slowed down at the Union to catch my breath... they were right behind me... only many more... and each form had begun to take on the shape of a massive encyclopedia which had been barred from our graduate library.

It must have been raining... or softly misting... anyway it was cloudy and almost twilight... when I glided out into the arena... in the center of our new field

New Wartime Program For Educational Defence

Professor D. V. Terrell, of the Engineering college, in charge of the Educational Defense Program on the campus, announced Tuesday, the inauguration of a new wartime program starting this month.

This new engineering science, management, and war training program, will operate with a nationwide appropriation of $30,000,000 approved by Congress on June 30, and signed on July 3 by the President.

This is considerably larger than a similar Congressional appropriation of $20,500,000 for the previous year.

Prof. Terrell announced that the University spent $9,000 last year on extension courses at Ashland, Owensboro, Bowling Green and Gilbertsville, and on defense courses on the University campus.

Some of the courses under the old program will not be completed until September 30.

Due to the increased appropriation the new program will be more extensive than the old one.

Prof. D. V. Terrell

"... University spent $9,000 last year on extension and defense courses ..."

McRight Made Assistant Coach

The appointment of a new assistant football coach, Ralph McRight, who for the past five years has been at Paducah's Tilghmans high school, was approved last Friday by the Executive Committee of the University Board of Trustees. Such a move has been expected here for some time, in view of the fact that two members of the coaching staff are now on leave of absence with the armed forces.

Before going to Paducah, Mr. McRight spent six years at Hopkinsville, where he annually produced one of western Kentucky's outstanding high-school teams. At present he is president of the Kentucky High School Coaches Association.

Mr. McRight, a University of Alabama graduate, was blocking back on the Crimson Tide team of 1930, which swept over Washington State 24-0 in the Rose Bowl, after going undefeated during a ten-game season.

"Ralph McRight is well-thought-of both by educational men of the state and by athletes and coaches", said Mr. Kirwan, who expressed that the athletic department is well pleased with the appointment.

Down Sports' Lane

BY DICK GILLESPIE

Somebody evidently got the wires crossed last week, when a press release announced that Indiana University "agreed to play" UK in basketball at the Jefferson County armory, December 23.

This "agreement" actually came in the form of a letter to the University athletic office seeking arrangement of a game during the coming season. All of which makes it appear that it was not the Hoosiers who did the "agreeing", but Messrs. Shively and Rupp.

The letter did not come as a complete surprise. For several years a vocal group, composed chiefly of residents of the Falls cities, has been clamoring for a meeting of the two schools on the hardwood, and as late as last year, Kentucky indicated its willingness to talk turkey, but received no response.

In spite of the difficulties encountered in arranging it, the holiday clash looks like a natural. It will pit the champions of the Southeastern Conference against a quintet that is regarded, year after year, as "the cream of the Big Ten."

The game will probably attract a capacity crowd of eight or nine thousand, of which Indiana will send their share.

For the Wildcats it will be an opportunity to avenge the three-point defeat they suffered at the hands of the Hoosiers in the Sugar Bowl basketball classic in 1940, the only previous encounter.

It looked like the real thing out on Stoll Field Monday afternoon.

Coaches Kirwan and Shively were there, deeply preoccupied in directing the activities of a hard charging pass-snagging, crowd of prospective football players, all attired in their game togs and looking energetic in spite of the fact that it was ninety in the shade.

Further investigation showed, however, that far from starting rehearsals for the big show which according to conference rules cannot begin until September the boys were posing for pictures that will adorn the sports page next fall.

A second look also revealed that it was not the coaches who bossed the event, but Roy Steinfort, Wildcat publicity director.

Looking good for the cameraman were Randall Hammer, Charlie Kuhn, Jay Rhodemyer, George Sengle, Ben Kessinger, Tommy Ewing, Charlie Eblen, Gene Meeks, and Harry Taylor.

NUMBER, PLEASE?

'Juke-Box Girls' Taboo For Romantic College Boys

By "Jim" Pennock

"Curious boys should realize that Juke-box Jenny is a business woman and not a flirtatious co-ed," Mr. John R. Humphrey, general manager of the local branch of the Stratford "Magic Music" Company said during an interview at his office yesterday.

"Sometimes 'Jenny' finds it very difficult to convince young men that her job is to offer entertainment and pleasure through music and that she is not operating a 'lonely hearts' bureau," Humphrey continued.

"Naturally, he added, he added," the girls have formed a rejecting system which will cause adventure-seeking romanticists to request a number and hang up without feeling offended.

For instance, I remember one evening that my wife, who relieved one of the girls, received a call from a very persistent young man who would not give her a song number unless she told him her name and address. Not wishing to anger him or discourage him, she appealed to his sympathy. In loud tones she "Number, please;" then in a whisper she told him that she couldn't talk because the supervisor had just come in. The youth gave her a request and hung up."

According to Mr. Humphrey, the "magic telephone" has held first place in novice popularity ever since its introduction two years ago.

Their system offers access to hundreds of songs subject to call at any time, while the "button selection" nickerdeon holds only 24 records.

"What did you say, fellow; Oh 'Jenny'-she's a blonde, and—very cute."

"What's that? Her Name? Oh! My gosh, I forgot to ask her!"

"Drop-In" Dances To Be Continued

The summer series of "drop-in" evenings of Country and Square Dancing will start its second term at 7:45 p. m., Thursday, in the Woman's Gymnasium at the University.

These evenings which were started in June have an average attendance of seventy-five persons. The emphasis has been placed on American dances, which include circle, longways, and quadrille types. English and Danish dances have also been included in the evenings.

This series has been designed principally for residents of Lexington and vicinity and for mobile defense workers who find it difficult to attend a regularly scheduled program of recreation. The entire family can participate in this program. Attendance this summer has included persons from 14 to 60 years of age.

Rupp Mourns Small Gym-- Releases '42-'43 Schedule

"Inadequate seating facilities in the Alumni gymnasium force us to play our three biggest games of the season, Indiana, Notre Dame, and Great Lakes, as well as the Southeastern conference tournament in Louisville's Jefferson County Armory," Coach Adolph Rupp stated today.

"We need the fieldhouse badly," he said. "The gym just isn't big enough."

"However, eleven of the twenty-two scheduled games will be played here, including two teams new to Lexington crowds. Washington University and Ft. Knox."

Another highlight of the schedule will be the Depauw University game which will be played in Chicago Stadium, February 20. This game will be the first of a double header, the second, to feature Notre Dame and Great Lakes.

Mr. Rupp revealed that the Great Lakes game would be for the benefit of the Navy Relief fund, while the proceeds from the Ft. Knox engagement are to be donated to some charitable service organization.

The possibility of a game with Ohio State, here December 31, was also mentioned.
